Apply today for Indigenous Arts Residency: Digital Constellations 2023

Program Information:

Overview

The Digital Constellations Residency supports the development and research phase of a digital media project wherein you can apply as an individual or with a collaborator.

The residency offers time and a supportive environment to focus on the early concept stages of your project and to research and experiment. The digital media project can intersect with a visual arts practice.

With guidance from faculty, our Media Production team and the support of visual arts facilitators, the goal is for you to create samples of work and develop your project throughout the program. You will also have the opportunity to share projects and network.

Who should apply?

Indigenous digital media artists working in the early stages of a project, interested in both researching, experimenting and integrating a visual arts component.

Indigenous Visual Artists with emerging skills in digital media arts interested in developing a digital media project.
